ELECTRONIC SIGNATURE AGREEMENT

Please take a moment to read and acknowledge your understanding and acceptance of the Federal Electronic Signatures In Global and National Commerce Act (E-Sign)

Under the Federal Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, before we may accept your account agreement and related documents electronically, we must provide you with the following information and you must affirmatively agree and not withdraw such agreement.

By electronically signing our account agreement and related documents, you acknowledge receipt of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission's required risk disclosures and other documents contained as part of our electronic account package and you agree to be bound by their terms and conditions. In addition, by signing our account agreement and related documents, you are consenting to our maintaining and your receiving electronic records of your trades and accounts. You may withdraw your consent to such electronic records by notifying us in writing or by e-mail, at any time, after which you only will receive paper records. However, please be advised that should you withdraw your consent to receive records electronically and receive paper records of your transactions, you will be charged a fee.

There are no special hardware or software requirements for access to or retention of your electronic records at this time other than having access to the internet, and registering for your unique and secure user name and password (to print copies of the records, you may need a program to read documents in "PDF" format). Should any technological change or upgrade be made that will affect your ability to access your records and accounts, we will notify you and remind you of (A) your right to withdraw your consent to receive electronic records and to receive paper records instead, and (B) any fee we may charge you to receive paper records.

Risk Disclosure
This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances. FUTURES 1. Effect of 'Leverage' or 'Gearing' Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are 'leveraged' or 'gearing'. A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit; this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain your position.
Supplement to Risk Disclosure
The following information supplements the disclosures contained in the Risk Disclosure Statement for Futures and Options. 1. Exercise of Options An option on a futures contract is exercised through the clearinghouse for the exchange listing the option. Notice of exercise must be given to the clearinghouse through the member of the clearinghouse carrying the customer's account. The exercise of an option involves an overnight process. Following the receipt of an exercise notice, the clearinghouse will randomly assign the exercise to a clearing member holding a position as a writer, or seller, of the same option series. On the day following the exercise of an option, opposite future positions are established for the holder (buyer) and writer (seller) of the option by the clearinghouse through a book entry in the clearing system. Where a call is exercised, the holder of the call will be assigned a long futures position and the seller will be assigned a short futures position. The opposite will be true in the case of a put. Customers should not be confused by the cut-off time established by a clearinghouse for the submission of exercise notices, which follows by several hours the time when customers must give notice of exercise to AMP Global Clearing, LLC ("AMP"). This time interval is required to permit the processing and forwarding to the clearinghouse of customer exercise notices by AMP.
<input type="button" value="Back to Trading Profile"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> I understand there is a substantial risk of loss in trading commodity futures, options and off-exchange foreign currency products.

Electronic Trading And Order Routing Systems Disclosure Statement
Electronic Trading and Order Routing Disclosure Statement for Futures Trades
Electronic trading and order routing systems differ from traditional open outcry pit trading and manual order routing methods. Transactions using an electronic system are subject to the rules and regulations of the exchange(s) offering the system and/or listing the contract. Before you engage in transactions using an electronic system, you should carefully review the rules and regulations of the exchange(s) offering the system and/or listing contracts you intend to trade. 1. DIFFERENCES AMONG ELECTRONIC TRADING SYSTEMS Trading or routing orders through electronic systems varies widely among the different electronic systems. You should consult the rules and regulations of the exchange offering the electronic system and/or listing the contract traded or order routed to understand the differences among the systems.

Uniform Notification Regarding Access to Market Data
As a market user you may obtain access to Market Data available through an electronic trading system, software or device that is provided or made available to you by a Broker or an affiliate of such. Market Data may include, with respect to products of an exchange ("Exchange") or the products of third party participating exchanges that are traded on or through the Exchange's electronic trading platform ("Participating Exchange"), but is not limited to, "real time" or delayed market prices, opening and closing prices and ranges, high-low prices, settlement prices, estimated and actual volume information, bids or offers and the applicable sizes and numbers of such bids or offers.
<input type="radio"/> Yes, I agree with these terms <input type="radio"/> No, I do not agree with these terms
Notice Regarding Average Price System
Notice Regarding Average Price System
You should be aware that certain U.S. and non-U.S. exchanges, including the CME and CBOT, may now or in the future allow a futures commission merchant ("FCM") such as AMP to confirm trades executed on such exchanges to some or all of their customers on an average price basis regardless of whether the exchanges have average price systems of their own. Average prices that are not calculated by an exchange system will be calculated by your FCM. In either case, trades that are confirmed to you at average prices will be designated as such on your daily and monthly statements. APS enables a clearing firm to confirm to customers an average price when multiple execution prices are received on an order or series of orders for the same contracts. Customers of the clearing firm are not responsible for the accuracy of the average price calculation.
